Clever Gainsboroughs.
The father of Thomas Gainsborough, the great Suffolk painter, added as much to the wealth of Sudbury as the son increased its fame, says the London Tatler, for the father introduced more than one new industry into the town from Coventry. The Gainsboroughs were indeed a remarkable family. One brother of the painter, known as "Scheming Jack," was clever enough to make himself a pair of copper wings, but not clever enough to fly with them; to make a cradle which rocked itself and a cuckoo which sang all the year round. Thomas himself at an early age started his father by forging his signature to a message addressed to the local schoolmaster, "Give Tom a holiday," a message which provoked the parental prophecy, "Tom will be hanged one day." Tom was hanged—in the Royal academy.

Not a Square Deal.
Miss Mason was explaining to her Sunday school class the lesson for the day, the subject being the tares and the wheat.
"Now, remember, children, the tares represent the bad people and the wheat the good ones."
"Why, Miss Mason!" exclaimed a rosy checked boy, who had been listening through the lesson with deep interest. "Did you say the tares are the bad folks and the wheat the good ones?"
"Yes, James," replied the teacher, pleased at the lad's interest.
"Well, that's funny, I think," remarked the matter of fact child. "It's the wheat that gets thrashed; the tares don't."—Country Gentleman.

UNCLE SAM CAN KEEP WOLF OFF

Senator Simmons Says Deficit Amounts to $26,000,000.

MAKES DETAILED STATEMENT

Chairman of Finance Committee of Senate Sees No Basis For Alarming Figures—Poor Business Due to European War Is Chief Factor in Lowering Receipts—Sees Brighter Days Ahead.

Washington. — Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, does not think the treasury deficit will be excessive and is not alarmed over lack of money to run the government.
"There have been so many conflicting statements with reference to the probable deficit in the revenue of the present fiscal year, some persons placing it as $100,000,000, some as high as $130,000,000," said he, "I have thought it well to look thoroughly into the situation with a view to ascertaining what were the real facts. During the past few weeks I have been in conference with officials of the treasury department, and I feel safe in saying the probable deficit will not much exceed $26,000,000.

"This does not include the expenditures on account of the Panama canal. These are otherwise provided for by law and are not required to be paid out of the current funds of the government. Estimated receipts of the government from all sources as made in September, 1913, were as follows: From customs, $240,000,000; internal revenue, $305,000,000; corporation and income tax, $122,000,000; miscellaneous, $60,000,000. Total receipts, $727,000,000. The probable net ordinary expenditures were estimated at $718,000,000, showing an estimated excess of receipts of $18,000,000.

"The receipts from practically every source have fallen below the estimate, due to depressed business conditions on account of the war in Europe. Although the revenue derived from the internal revenue tax will probably be increased by the emergency revenue act over the estimate by about $20,000,000, there was on March 15, 1915, an excess of ordinary expenditures over receipts of approximately $85,000,000 against a deficit of $24,000,000 on the same date last year.

"The estimated receipts for the remainder of the fiscal year are: From customs, $72,000,000; internal revenue, $67,000,000; corporation and income tax, $70,000,000; miscellaneous receipts, $21,000,000, a total of $230,000,000. The ordinary disbursements will amount to $207,000,000. An excess of receipts over expenditures for the remainder of the year of $59,000,000. This shows a net deficit at the end of the fiscal year of about $26,000,000.

"The increases are due, in part, to the normal growth of the government and in part are due to conditions arising out of the European war and the abnormal conditions in Mexico. When the facts that the income tax is not required to be paid by law until about the end of the fiscal year (June 30), and that the bulk of this tax is not, in fact, paid until about the end of the fiscal year are considered, the circumstance of an excess of disbursement over receipt for the first half of the year, and an excess of receipts over disbursements during the last half, will be readily understood, and it will also be apparent that any estimate based upon the assumption that the proportion of the receipts and disbursements will be the same during the second half of the year as during the first half is both misleading and erroneous."

SIXTY MILES OF BOOKS.

Harvard's Widener Memorial Library Now Nearing Completion.
Boston.—Sixty miles of shelves, capable of holding 2,500,000 volumes, have been put in place in the Harry Elkins Widener Memorial library at Harvard. The work of finishing the interior of the new $2,000,000 structure is now in its last stages, and the dedication will probably take place during commencement week in June.

A large force of workmen is now engaged in putting the finishing touches on the main reading room. The ceiling decorations are nearly completed. The color of the ceiling, as well as the polished stone pillars and side columns, is a deep yellow.

WHEAT SOLUTION SUGGESTED

Let the Government Buy Staple, Hint an Australian.

Chicago.—"You Americans certainly are a queer sort," exclaimed P. E. Quinn, deputy trade commissioner of Australia, who is in this city.

"Here you have the greatest wheat resources in the world, and your people are paying an exorbitant price for the main necessary of life."

"How different you are from New South Wales! With the outbreak of the war the government bought up all the wheat at $1.20 a bushel. And it has remained at that price ever since."

Bowser's Bargains

He Aids a Man Who Wanted to Pay His Debts.

By M. QUAD.
Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

It was a quiet evening in the Bowser sitting room, with the family cat purring in three languages and Mr. Bowser lingering over the end of his cigar and reading the paper, when there came a ring at the bell. Mr. Bowser answered it in person, as he was expecting a neighbor to call, and as he opened the door he found a rather seedy, middle aged man waiting to say to him:

"My dear sir, I want a moment's conversation with you on a strictly business affair."

He was admitted in a grudging way, and bringing a rueful smile to his face and speaking in confidential tones, he continued:

"After fifteen years of hard work I have made a failure in business. I could swindle my customers or go into bankruptcy, but my conscience will not permit me. I wish to pay dollar for dollar. To do so I must sacrifice everything, even to my wife's jewels. Here is a diamond ring which I wish to get rid of and turn the money over to a heartless creditor who would even deprive my children of bread. Will you name a price for it?"

"I WANT A MOMENT'S CONVERSATION WITH YOU."

"If it's a straight business failure you are not required to sell the shirt off your back," replied Mr. Bowser.

"But it's a matter of conscience, you see. I said I'd pay a hundred cents on the dollar, and I'll do it if I have to go barefoot. Will you show that ring to your wife?"

Mr. Bowser had been gum-gamed two or three times and was rather suspicious, but he took the ring and walked back to the sitting room.

"Don't buy it at any price!" said Mrs. Bowser, as she looked at it. "It's probably some snide affair, and the man is no doubt a fraud, who thinks to take advantage of your innocence."

"Do you mean that the man takes me for a fool on sight?" exclaimed Mr. Bowser as he flushed up.

"He may not, but I think he's looking for a soft snap."

"Oh, you do? That's you to a dot! Always suspicious and distrustful and hard-hearted. I shall buy the ring."

"Then you'll be swindled!"

"Not if I know it. I shall simply do my duty by helping an honest man out of a hole."

Mr. Bowser went back to the man and found him very reasonable. All he wanted for his wife's birthday ring was $40, and that was only one-third of its cost. It grieved him to part with it, but what was grief compared to integrity or character? As the tears began to appear Mr. Bowser sent him off with $40 in his pocket and returned to Mrs. Bowser to say:

"How you can steel your heart against the cries of humanity the way you do is a wonder to me. You'd doubtless have turned that poor man away with a stab in the back!"

"And saved $40!" she curiously replied.

"Do you mean that this ring isn't worth fully $100?" he blustered.

"I don't believe it's worth $5!"

"Woman, do you take me for a fool?"

shouted Mr. Bowser with furious gesture as he danced around and frightened the cat under the piano. "I think I know a man of integrity when I see one. I also think I know a diamond ring from a side of sole leather. By the living jingo, if I had your contemptible spirit I'd go!"

He walked about for a few minutes, breathing hard and perspiring under the collar, and nothing further was said on the subject. The cat gradually recovered her courage, the fire blazed cheerfully, and peace had returned to hover over all, when the bell rang again. Again Mr. Bowser went to the door. It was the man of integrity returned.

"Pny, excuse me," he said as he crowded his way into the hall, "but you were so kind to me about the ring I have returned to show you my creditors but conscience stings me. It is a watch that cost me $50, but under the circumstances—"

"Mr. Bowser, will you step here a moment?" interrupted Mrs. Bowser.

He had no intention of buying the watch. He meant to get rid of the man at once, but Mrs. Bowser's interference nettled him and changed his plans. Turning to the man, he said: "The watch is well worth $50, and I should be glad to give you that sum to help you settle with your creditors, but I have only $15 in my pocket."

"Then I'll take that," sighed the business failure, with a quiver in his voice. "I want to settle a claim at once—tonight—and I know that I shall have at least cold potatoes for breakfast. It grieves me, but—take it along."

Mrs. Bowser called again, but Mr. Bowser passed over the money, patted the man of integrity on the shoulder and closed the door after him. Then he returned to the sitting room, placed watch and ring on the mantel and sat down without a word. After a quarter of an hour of silence Mrs. Bowser went upstairs to keep clear of any further row, and the expected neighbor came in.

Of course he was told of the honest business man and shown the watch and ring. He began to grin as soon as they were placed in his hands, and pretty soon he said:

"Look here, Bowser. You've been played for a sucker!"

"It can't be!"

"But it can be and is. Those diamonds are nothing but glass, and that ring isn't worth $3! Was Mrs. Bowser here when you bought it?"

"What if she was or wasn't?"

"She'd have detected the fraud at once. The game that fellow worked on you is as old as the hills. What on earth made you bite?"

"I—I wanted to help an honest man. As for the watch—"

"Ha, ha, ha!"

"What in thunder do you mean?" demanded Mr. Bowser as his face kept growing paler.

"I'm thinking of the cheek of the man to come back and swindle you a second time. Say, now, but you are dead easy. This watch never cost over $3. Bowser, old man, you've been bamboozled for $55 with your eyes wide open. You'd better let Mrs. Bowser deal with such chaps after this."

"But what does she know of such folks?" protested Mr. Bowser.

"A heap more than you do, I should say, if you are so easily taken in. Well, well, I wouldn't have believed it!"

As the situation was somewhat embarrassing the neighbor didn't stay long, and when he had taken his departure Mr. Bowser sat down to chew the bitter cud. He had been chewing for about twenty minutes and wondering how he could get even with Mrs. Bowser when the bell rang, and he made his way to the door and opened it to find the same business failure on the step again.

"You will excuse me, I know," said the man, "but I have a diamond pin I didn't show you. It is a pin my wife gave me on my fortieth birthday, when everything was going well with us. As it is worth $150 I thought I could easily get rid of it among your neighbors for $30 or $40, but I find that I can't. Your exceeding kindness to me and your desire to help me maintain my standard of integrity led me to hope—"

"Come in!" interrupted Mr. Bowser.

The man entered the hall and opened a pasteboard box to reveal a diamond pin resting on a nest of red cotton.

"You—you have a diamond pin to sell me?" said Mr. Bowser in a strange, hard voice.

"Yes; I thought to keep it from my creditors, but my conscience won't let me. It is worth $150, but owing to circumstances—"

Then Mr. Bowser jumped on him. The man of integrity was taken by surprise and rolled on the floor, but he soon recovered, and there was a scrap that upset the hall tree, tickled the cat half to death and made the dust fly. It lasted five minutes, and then Mr. Bowser got the door open and "lifted" the man of integrity out into the cold and cruel world and turned to find Mrs. Bowser on the stairs.

"Well?" she queried as he glared at her and puffed like an old engine set going for the fall and winter trade, "have you gone out of the jewelry business?"

He slowly extended his arm and shook his finger at her and tried to answer back, but his emotions were too great.

"If you have," she continued as she turned and began to ascend, "you'd better look up and come to bed and let me rub you down with witch-hazel!"

"Doubling Misfortune."

"Trouble never comes single, does it?"

"No; I know a family who last year had double pneumonia and the next year had twins."—Baltimore American.

REUNION

Of Forum Staffs An Enjoyable Event

Friday evening the first annual Forum reunion was held in the high school building. Those invited were members of the present Forum staff and former members of Forum staffs. Approximately seventy-five persons gathered in the high school building where a very enjoyable hour was spent. A program was rendered which was enjoyed by all present. Later in the evening the company adjourned to Turner's restaurant where a three-course banquet was served.

The programs for this reunion were very unique. They were made up as a small Forum and were called the Reunion number. On the inside in the "Locals" is said that the first reunion of Forum staffs was held March 27th, and then it gave the program for the evening.

After listening to the toasts given, those present elected officers for the ensuing year and the reunion for next year was put in charge of these officers. The following were the officers elected:

President—Russell Thrallkill.
Secretary and Treasurer—Dan Houck.

The merry party then adjourned for one year, declaring the first reunion of Forum staffs to have been a complete success in every way.

RUSSIAN FLEET IS BOMBARDING FORTS

Petrograd, Mar. 29.—Russia's Black Sea fleet has begun its long threatened attack upon the Bosphorus, only 18 miles from Constantinople. After driving back into the straits, the Turkish fleet that recently sallied forth for battle, it opened a bombardment Sunday against the forts on both the European and Asiatic sides of the Bosphorus, the eastern gate to the Ottoman capital.
